How do you know what your students learn?

Strengthen your assessment skills in our January CIRTLCast series

How can you improve your teaching if you don’t really know what your students are learning? Join our online event series on Wednesdays at 1PM Eastern time to hear faculty and staff at universities across the country discuss specific approaches you can use to evaluate all aspects of your students’ learning. This event series is brought to you by Cornell University and the Center for the Integration of Research, Teaching, and Learning (CIRTL), a network of 21 major research universities that aims to improve the sciences through inclusive, research-based teaching.
